Colonel to plead guilty

Russell Williams, former CFB Trenton commander who once flew prime minister's plane, to plead guilty in two Trenton-area murders and 86 other charges

A former rising star in the Canadian military plans to plead guilty to two murders and 86 other charges, a development Thursday that left one victim's family desperate for answers from Col. Russell Williams.

Williams, 47, intends to plead guilty Oct. 18 to two counts of first-degree murder, two sexual assaults and scores of break and enters, his lawyer told Ontario Superior Court in Belleville.

Dressed in a dark suit and a rumpled, white open-collar shirt, Williams hung his head low through the proceedings and showed little emotion.

The military was rocked to its core in February when Williams — then commander of CFB Trenton — was charged in the deaths of Jessica Lloyd, 27, and Cpl. Marie-France Comeau, 38.

Then in April, Williams was hit with 82 break-and-enter charges, some of which involved lingerie.

Lloyd's brother said he doesn't want an apology, just the truth.

"Why, why her? How did all this come about? There are so many questions everybody wants to ask," Andy Lloyd said outside court.

Comeau was found dead in her home in Brighton last November. She was a flight attendant at CFB Trenton and served aboard the same military VIP flights Williams piloted for much of the 1990s.

Lloyd was found dumped on a dirt road in nearby Tweed, where Williams also lived. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Civil suit

- One of Russell Williams' alleged sexual assault victims has also launched a $2.45-million lawsuit against Williams and his wife, Mary-Elizabeth Harriman.
- The 21-year-old woman, identified only as Jane Doe, claims the "horrific and reprehensible" alleged sexual attack has left her fearful and suicidal. The civil suit allegations have not been proven in court.

Book chronicles a Killer career

Coaching job "allowed me to be in contact with some of the greatest names in hockey," says Kilrea

TRACEY TONG
@METRONEWS.CA

They call him Killer, but off the ice and in person, Brian Kilrea would have a hard time living up to the moniker from his early days in hockey.

Instead, the much-respected general manager of the Ottawa 67's and former coach and hockey player comes off as a modest and generous man.

When approached about a book chronicling his 60-year career in hockey — during which he won more games than any other coach in junior hockey history — Kilrea initially wasn't interested.

When he finally agreed, one of his conditions was that he "didn't want any curse words in it.

"I knew that young kids would read it," he said.

Now that the book, They Call Me Killer, has hit the stands, Kilrea, who spoke at a launch event Thursday, is donating all of his proceeds to the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario. "I thought maybe I could help them out," he said.

Some of the best advice he's ever received was from his dad, who told him to remember that things always work out for the best.

"I never look back," he said. "I just look at today and hope for a better tomorrow."

"He treats the boys like men, which is good. They respect him for that ... I think some guys in the National Hockey League treat the players like little boys."

Police lay charges in old sexual assault investigation

Ottawa police have laid charges in a historical sexual assault investigation.

A Renfrew man was charged after police alleged a male teacher assaulted a teenaged male more than 40 years ago.

Police allege the teacher was involved in inappropriate sexual activity with a 13-year-old boy who was attending Elizabeth Park Intermediate School in Ottawa back in the 1960s.

The years that police allege a sexual assault took place at Elizabeth Park Intermediate School.

Michael Grant Slater, 70, was arrested Wednesday. He was charged with one count each of indecent assault on a male and gross indecency. He appeared in court Thursday.

The investigation continues.

Haida art the focus of new museum exhibit

Artifacts collected in 1878 during a visit to Haida Gwaii in northern B.C. Exhibit tells the stories of Haida culture, dating back thousands of years

From the reverse side of the Canadian twenty-dollar bill to the doors of the Canadian Embassy in the United States, Haida art is everywhere.

This Aboriginal artwork is about to receive more exposure as Haida: Life.Spirit.Art opens at the Canadian Museum of Civilization Friday.

Award-winning Haida artist Robert Davidson hopes to give the public an intimate look at more than 80 masterpieces from this ancient yet vibrant culture.

"I feel there is recognition to the art beyond our own culture … because I feel it brings the art beyond our own cultural boundaries into the western world," said Davidson.

"I was very emotional about it because my brother nominated me, and to have my brother do that spoke volumes to me. And to be part of the other eight recipients who achieved that same level of excellence … was very exciting."

ON RECEIVING THE GOVERNOR GENERAL'S AWARD

The collection includes 19th-century cutlery and hand-carved fishhooks, which Davidson believes are the only remaining language of Haida culture. The artifacts were carefully selected by him from the McCord Museum in Montreal.

Visitors can catch the exhibit in the museum's north salon until Jan. 23.

Mingle with butterflies during Carleton show

JOE LOFARO/FOR METRO OTTAWA

▶ The Butterfly Show runs through Monday.

In its 11th year, the annual Butterfly Show at Carleton University is well underway with a few hidden gems that many are eager to observe.

Ottawa residents have through Thanksgiving Monday to check out this free event that draws thousands of people each year. There are over 40 species of butterflies from South America and Asia fluttering about the campus greenhouse.

Guests are sure to learn a few fun facts about butterflies on their visit, like the Morphinae butterfly, which is said to have hearing capabilities, according to research from Carleton biology professor, Jayne Yak.

"I want people to have a good time, get educated, you know? To read about the butterflies and then experience them inside the greenhouse," said greenhouse manager Edward Bruggink.

Bruggink started the show in 1999 and is the backbone behind it, with some financial support from his colleagues.

JOE LOFARO

Event details

- The Butterfly Show is held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Carleton's Nesbitt Biology Building.
- Be sure to bring a couple of slices of fresh-cut oranges if you want to get up close and personal with these friendly butterflies.
- A new addition to the collection this year are the African Moon moths, which are expected to come out of their cocoons in time for guests to play with.
- The show attracted 10,000 people last year.
- Parking is free on weekends and holidays and there is no admission cost, but donations are accepted and will go towards the purchase of butterfly specimens.

Chiarelli was a paid lobbyist: NDP

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Bob Chiarelli says 'there are good lobbyists and there are bad lobbyists.'

- He quit before running for office
- It was all 'done openly,' he says

Ontario's New Democrats say the lobbyist controversy that has gripped the legislature for days reaches all the way to Premier Dalton McGuinty's cabinet table.

After uncovering lucrative lobbying contracts among hospitals, colleges and universities, the NDP says Infrastructure Minister Bob Chiarelli was also a paid lobbyist before he won an Ottawa seat last March.

According to the provincial registry, Chiarelli was hired in 2007 to lobby the government on behalf of Algonquin College.

He withdrew his name as a lobbyist on Jan. 25, just a few days after he announced he'd run in the byelection but before he was acclaimed as the Liberal candidate.

The former Ottawa mayor says he did nothing wrong and ended his relationship with the college before he ran.

The NDP says Chiarelli was paid $7,500 a month as a lobbyist for the college, which received $35 million from the McGuinty government in 2008 to create 600 more spaces for students.

"What I did, first of all, was done in good faith. It was done openly, it was done transparently, it was part of the public dynamic that was happening in my community and I was proud of the work that I've done with Algonquin."

BOB CHIARELLI

Chiarelli also broke ground last month on a $10-million project on the college's Perth campus that received most of its funding from governments.

The Liberals promised this week to introduce legislation that would block publicly funded institutions from using taxpayer dollars to lobby the government for more money.

Flu shots here: Get set to fight H1N1 again

Canadians who chose not to be immunized against H1N1 during the pandemic will have another shot at getting protected with this year's seasonal flu vaccination.

Next week, provinces and territories across the country will begin rolling out the 2010-11 vaccine, which includes H1N1 A and two other strains — H3N2 influenza A Perth and influenza B Brisbane.

All children over six months and adults of all ages are encouraged to get a flu shot, said Dr. Patricia Huston, senior medical adviser for the Public Health Agency.

"It will protect you against the pandemic H1N1 strain, for example," said Huston. "But we anticipate it will be a new H3N2 strain that will be circulating this year, so previous flu vaccines will not cover you for that."

Provinces and territories began shipping vaccine last month to their health units, and distribution to clinics, long-term care facilities and MDs' offices is already underway.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Flu facts

At least 4,000 Canadians die from flu-related complications each year. But most people recover in about a week.

- For this season, the Public Health Agency has ordered 11.2 million doses of the trivalent vaccine from manufacturers GlaxoSmithKline and Sanofi Pasteur, based on requests from provinces.
- Total cost of the bulk order: about $40 million to $45 million.

Lakeside Steel will cut jobs

Lakeside Steel Inc. is cutting a quarter of its salaried positions in Welland, Ont., where the company has its headquarters, as the pipe producer shifts some production to the U.S.

The company didn't disclose how many people are affected.

As of July, Lakeside had 74 salaried employees, according to documents filed with securities regulators — which means 18 or 19 people would likely be affected by the cuts.

Lakeside makes steel pipe and tubing for oil and gas, mining, automotive and commercial and industrial companies.

It started construction on a plant in Alabama last month to be closer to its customer base and because labour costs are much lower.

"This restructuring is an important and necessary measure in Lakeside's ongoing campaign to rationalize the cost base of its business," Lakeside president and CEO Ron Bedard said.

First comes school, then comes marriage?

- Median age for those lacking degrees has risen to 28
- Now even with the number for the college-educated

Young adults with college degrees are now more likely to be married than those who are less educated, a reversal of longtime trends as the struggling economy pushes weddings to all-time lows.

About 62 per cent of college-educated 30-year-olds were married or had been married, compared with 60 per cent of those without a bachelor's degree, according to a Pew Research Center analysis of American census data.

That is a significant shift from the 1990s, when young adults who did not finish college were more likely to have wed than their better-educated counterparts, 75 per cent to 69 per cent.

Other findings

- More than nine in 10 U.S. adults marry at some point in their lives. Overall, Americans marry at higher levels than people in most other Western countries.
- Adults with less education are more likely to divorce.
- Married adults are better off economically. The median adjusted income of married adults in one-earner households was about $63,000. That compares with $53,000 for unmarried adults in one-earner households.

Demographers attributed the shift partly to an economic downturn that has hit lesser-educated workers harder.

As a whole, more younger adults are postponing marriage while they struggle to find work, and those lacking college degrees are seeing sharper declines in marriage.

The rising number of unmarried couples choosing to live together, common particularly for those without college degrees, is also contributing to the decreases in marriage.

"The labour market has not been kind to young, less-educated workers," said Richard Fry, a senior researcher at Pew who wrote the report.

"College used to delay marriage. Now, not completing college delays marriage." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baptist leader no fan of yoga

A Southern Baptist leader who is calling for Christians to avoid yoga and its spiritual attachments is getting plenty of pushback from enthusiasts who defend the ancient practice.

Southern Baptist Seminary president Albert Mohler says the stretching and meditative discipline derived from Eastern religions is not a Christian pathway to God.

Mohler said he objects to "the idea that the body is a vehicle for reaching consciousness with the divine."

15.8M

A 2008 study by the Yoga Journal put the number of yoga fans at 15.8 million in the U.S., or nearly seven per cent of adults. About 6.7 per cent of American adults are Southern Baptists, according to a 2007 survey.

"That's just not Christianity," Mohler told The Associated Press.

Mohler said feedback has come through email and comments on blogs and other websites since he wrote an essay to address questions about yoga he has heard for years.

"I'm really surprised by the depth of the commitment to yoga found on the part of many who identify as Christians," Mohler said.

He said his view is "not an eccentric Christian position." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toxic red sludge from factory reaches Danube

Residents near the spill site say the disaster ruined their entire village by making their land worthless

The toxic red sludge that burst out of a Hungarian factory's reservoir reached the mighty Danube River on Thursday after wreaking havoc on smaller rivers and creeks, and downstream nations rushed to test their waters.

The EU and environmental officials fear an environmental catastrophe affecting half a dozen nations if the red sludge, a waste product of making aluminium, contaminates the Danube, Europe's second-longest river.

Officials from Croatia, Serbia and Romania were taking river samples every few hours Thursday but hoping that the Danube's huge water volume would blunt the spill's impact.

The reservoir break on Monday disgorged a toxic torrent through three villages and creeks that flow into waterways connected to the Danube.

Creeks in Kolontar, the western village closest to the spill site, were still swollen and ochre red days later and villagers said they were devoid of fish.

The Hungarian Academy of Science said the muck's heavy metal concentrations do "not come close" to levels dangerous to the environment, but it still considered the sludge dangerous due to its caustic characteristics.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

pH reading

- An official said the pH content of the red sludge entering the Danube had dropped and was unlikely to cause further environmental damage.
- It had been tested earlier at a pH level of 13 and now was down under 10, and no dead fish had been spotted in the Danube.
- A neutral pH for water is 7, with normal readings ranging from 6.5 to 8.5. Each pH level is 10 times the previous level, so a pH of 13 is 1,000 times more alkaline than a pH of 10.

Breach was illegal, says privacy czar

In the wake of what the minister called an "embarrassing" breach, Canada's privacy commissioner says the Veterans Affairs Department broke the law by distributing the personal information of an outspoken critic.

Jennifer Stoddart released the findings Thursday of her year-long investigation into a complaint by retired intelligence officer Sean Bruyea, whose medical and financial info ended up in briefing notes to two federal cabinet ministers.

"The veteran's sensitive medical and personal information was shared — seemingly with no controls — among departmental officials who had no legitimate need to see it," she said.

"This personal information subsequently made its way into a ministerial briefing note about the veteran's advocacy activities. This was entirely inappropriate."

India issues warrants over Mumbai attacks

Interpol notified its members on Thursday that India has issued arrest warrants for five Pakistani citizens, including two army officers, for alleged involvement in the 2008 Mumbai terror attacks, an official said.

India asked Interpol to issue the so-called "red corner notices" for the five Pakistanis, said R.K. Gaur, a spokesman for India's Central Bureau of Investigation.

The five Pakistanis wanted by India are Maj. Sameer Ali, Maj. Iqbal, Illyas Kashmiri, Abdur Rehman Hashim and Sajid Majid.

The notices follow a probe by India's National Investigation Agency into the role of American David Coleman Headley, who pleaded guilty in the United States in March to participating in the planning of the attacks, which killed 166 people.

Arrest warrants for the five were issued by a New Delhi court in July following a request by the National Investigation Agency.

Workers at 9 Loblaw stores ready to strike

Talks began in April Most employees accepted the deal Only a small fraction of Loblaw stores will be affected

RYAN REMIORZ/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Loblaws store in St. Eustache, Que.

Employees of nine Loblaw-owned Zehr's Great Canadian and Real Canadian stores in southwestern Ontario are set to go on legal strike Friday just as shoppers are preparing for the Thanksgiving weekend.

Most of the members of the employees' union voted in favour of the tentative contract reached Oct. 2 after months of negotiations and help from a provincial mediator, so only a small fraction of the company's stores will be affected.

The contract covers not only Loblaw-bannered stores, but also Ontario locations operating under the names Zehrs, Zehrs Great Foods, Real Canadian Superstore and Fortinos.

Loblaw Co. Ltd. says all its Loblaw-branded stores across the province will remain open despite the rejection of a tentative contract by the 1,800-member Local 175/633 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union.

The UFCW represents about 30,000 Loblaw employees in the province but the strike would only affect 1,800 members at nine Zehr's and Real Canadian stores in Essex, Kent and Lambton counties.

The area, which includes the cities of Windsor in Essex, Chatham in Kent and Sarnia in Lambton, has been hard-hit by the recent troubles of the automotive manufacturing industry.

Woman's gripping first-hand account in affidavit is set for auction

She heard a terrible rumbling noise, then anguished cries for help as her rowboat pulled away from the sinking ocean liner Titanic that dreadful night in 1912.

Now, Laura Francatelli's first-person account of the disaster, in the form of a signed affidavit given to a British board of inquiry, is set to be auctioned.

It is a gripping first-hand account of how she and her two prominent employers — Sir Cosmo Duff-Gordon and his socialite wife, Lady Lucy Duff-Gordon — managed to survive, fleeing in a rowboat with a capacity for 40 people even though they only had 12 on board.

Sir Cosmo and Lady Duff "were two of the most controversial survivors," an auctioneer which will sell the affidavit Oct. 16 said.

Some say Sir Cosmo paid crewmen to get him away from the sinking vessel without returning to help those drowning.

Peruvian writer wins Nobel Prize

Peruvian Mario Vargas Llosa won the 2010 Nobel Prize in literature Thursday as the academy honoured one of the Spanish-speaking world's most acclaimed authors and an outspoken political activist who once ran for president in his tumultuous homeland.

Vargas Llosa is the first South American winner of the prestigious 10 million kronor ($1.5 million) Nobel Prize in literature since Colombian writer Gabriel Garcia Marquez won in 1982.

His writing is almost universally admired in Latin America but his gradual shift from the left toward an embrace of free-market capitalism has put him at odds with much of the hemisphere's intellectual elite.

Vargas Llosa has feuded with Venezuela's President Hugo Chavez and often tosses barbs at Cuba's Fidel Castro. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COURTING DISASTER

Other people's money

DAVID DESCÔTEAUX

Savings, not consumer credit, will save us.

Halloween is just around the corner. Here's a scary thought to put you in the mood: The Canadian economy could collapse any day.

So far, our economy has survived the financial crisis thanks to our housing bubble. The construction boom fuelled spending on building materials, appliances, furniture, electronics and more. But the bubble is deflating. And more people are losing their jobs every day.

South of the border, house prices continue to collapse. Over-indebted Americans will need years to clean up their balance sheets. As of now, 41 million of them survive on food stamps, and thousands more join their ranks every day. Canadian exporters will share their pain.

Are we prepared for a severe recession? No. Most of us are walking a financial tightrope. Canadians are struggling under record levels of debt — 145 per cent of disposable income. Carrying $50,000 on four cards and three lines of credit is the new normal. Six in 10 Canadians say they would be in trouble if their paycheques were late. Imagine if they lost their jobs.

Who's to blame? We are, of course. But so is the Bank of Canada, which has kept interest rates artificially close to zero for about three years now. When interest rates are low, we borrow to buy a house or a second car. Save? What for, when a certificate of deposit earns just one per cent?

This was our government's brilliant plan to get us out of recession: Entice people to shop till they drop. Two years ago, I was called crazy for advocating tax cuts instead of "stimulus" packages. "People will pay down their debt instead of spending!" Saving is wrong, I was told.

"When interest rates are low, we borrow to buy a house or a second car. Save? What for, when a certificate of deposit earns just one per cent?"

How did that work out for us, other than making us more vulnerable than ever?

The road to a real recovery goes through savings, not consumer credit. The Central Bank must stop this little game and let interest rates rise. This will hurt the economy in the short run, but it's the path we have to follow.

We face a simple choice — just as we did two years ago: Lots of pain now, or severe suffering later. Unfortunately, it's human nature to postpone hard choices. And in this, as in many things, politicians are all too human.

David Descôteaux is a freelance economic journalist and an associate researcher at the Montreal Economic Institute (iedm.org).

EMPLOYMENT OUTLOOK

Rate hike may have to wait

The Bank of Canada's push to raise interest rates this summer may soon go into hibernation for the winter — and the final shove will likely come with the jobs report Friday.

There is an unusually solid consensus among economists that about 10,000 jobs were added in September.

BMO Capital Markets economist Douglas Porter says that's not even enough to absorb the rise in the number of people entering Canada's labour force each month.

Just to keep up with labour market growth, the economy would need to create about 15,000 jobs a month, he said.

▶ Don Cherry, Riyaz Datoo and some sharply dressed dolls.

5 MINUTES WITH: RIYAZ DATOO

Riyaz Datoo is president of YouBobble (www.youbobble.com), which makes custom bobblehead dolls of its customers, and recently immortalized Don Cherry in plastic as a promotional item for Cold-FX.

The Don Cherry bobblehead is very true to life. Did you need special paints to get the colours of his outfit right?
Not really. Our business is to be able to create a bobblehead for anybody. They just provide us with a photo and we'll sculpt it. Everything is hand-sculpted and hand-painted.

Had you ever made a bobblehead with French cuffs before?
(Laughs) We've done a lot of interesting things. This one was a lot of fun, but we've done a lot of celebrity projects. We didn't have any idea it was going to be seen by Don Cherry. Cold-FX had it produced and they showed it to him, and Don Cherry has had bobbleheads created of him in the past but his comment was that he's never seen one that's looking so close to what he really looks like. So based on that, they sent an order for 12,000 units.

What is Cold-FX doing with 12,000 Don Cherrys?
Well, the first thing they're doing is recognizing hockey mothers, so mothers that spend a lot of time taking their kids out to arenas, they're recognizing them at special luncheons, like the one that took place last month in Ottawa. As part of being at these luncheons and getting to see Don Cherry, they're also receiving a memento Don Cherry bobblehead. The other thing that they're doing this cold season, people that purchase their capsules will have an opportunity of sending in for a complimentary Don Cherry bobblehead.

You also got to meet the man himself at the luncheon in Ottawa. How was that?
It was exciting. There was a lot of energy in the room. They took me backstage after the event and I got to shake his hand and he told me what he thought of the bobblehead and that he was very happy with it, and I said it was an honour.

Have you had a doll made of yourself?
What's the saying, the shoemaker's children run around barefoot? My wife has been asking me to create one of her and I as a cake-topper model, and I haven't done it yet, but now that you mention it, I think I'll do it and make her happy.

Worth mentioning

An Italian mother whose anguish over her missing daughter gripped the nation for weeks was told on live TV that the teenager had been slain, allegedly by the girl's uncle, in the house the show was being hosted in.

Concetta Serrano, looking like she was in shock, murmured, "my brother-in-law is innocent," and "I can't believe it," as she sat in the dining room of the uncle's house.

The TV anchor of a popular show about missing person cases on RAI state TV told her late Wednesday night the breaking news that "one of the persons" being interrogated by police in Taranto, Italy, had allegedly confessed to killing Sarah Scazzi, 15, and the body had been found.

While much of the nation watched, calls were made to the cellphone of the uncle, Michele Misseri, who, along with his wife, Serrano's sister, had been interrogated for hours and was still being questioned.

Misseri didn't answer. At one point someone telephoned the mother, who went pale.

Taranto prosecutor Franco Sebastio and police officials said Misseri had confessed he had killed Sarah shortly after she disappeared Aug. 26. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Connection plays role in Conviction

Movie's moral stance holds an emotional connection with audience
Swank and Rockwell's mutual admiration bolstered on-screen chemistry

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

When Hilary Swank and Sam Rockwell first got together to begin filming the drama Conviction, they bonded over one simple attribute.

"We're acting nerds," said Rockwell during a recent interview. "We got together and were just riffing and playing ball. It was a lot of fun."

Fun may not be the most accurate description for what united the duo, however. Based on a true story, Conviction is about Betty Anne Waters (Swank), a determined mother that enters law school and sacrifices nearly two decades of her life in order to prove the innocence of her incarcerated brother (Rockwell).

"Essentially it's a real love story at its core and I think that's something that everyone is relating to," said Swank. "I don't want to say they're just ordinary people but they are (like others) people have in their lives and its through an extraordinary experience they have to find their way through this maze and together that's all they have."

"People in their lives have had things go awry and so they connect — but on a smaller level, of course."
HILARY SWANK

Indeed, Conviction (in theatres next Friday) is a stirring love story between two siblings but the stars also contend the drama's moral stance also holds an emotional connection with the audience.

"You want to see justice prevail," said Swank.

True Stories

Hilary Swank's best career success has been portraying historical figures. Here are some of Swank's most recognizable "real" roles:

- Boys Don't Cry (1999) Played transgender Brandon Teena; won the Oscar.
- Freedom Writers (2007) Played Erin Gruwell, acclaimed schoolteacher.
- Amelia (2009) Played Amelia Earhart, American aviation pioneer.

Four-legged stars steal the screen at the box office

Secretariat is perhaps the most storied horse to be portrayed in the movies But he's not the only one

What do Elizabeth Taylor and Diane Lane have in common? Besides earning the title World's Most Desirable Woman (Lane, officially, in 2004, and Taylor, pretty much all the way through the '60s and '70s), they've both shared the screen with a 1,600-pound leading man.

No, it wasn't Marlon Brando, it was a horse, of course! Both have starred in movies featuring four-legged cast mates — Taylor most famously in National Velvet, Lane in this weekend's Secretariat, the story of racing's most famous thoroughbred.

Secretariat may be the most storied real-life horse to be portrayed in the movies, but he's not the only one.

Remember Phar Lap? The biopic of his life and career — he was the most famous Australian animal athlete of all time, so well known that his heart, preserved at the National Museum of Australia, is their most requested exhibit — was not a hit in North America despite a 100 per cent Rotten Tomatoes rating, but was popular in Australia and New Zealand where the horse is a national treasure.

Faring better at the box office was the inspirational equine movie Seabiscuit, a Depression-era story about a charger that won races and lifted spirits.

Dubbed Three Men and a Horse by one writer, the story of a jockey (Tobey Maguire), a businessman (Jeff Bridges) and a wise old cowboy (Chris Cooper) connected with audiences and sold a hefty 5.5 million copies on DVD. Memorable quote? "The horse is too small, the jockey too big, the trainer too old, and I'm too dumb to know the difference."

More fleet of foot than the racehorse sports movies is the Disney comedy The Horse in the Gray Flannel Suit. Based on the novel The Year of the Horse by Eric Hatch, it mixes Mad Men-style advertising executives, a cute kid and a horse named after a stomach pill with stars Kurt Russell, Dean Jones and Dick Van Dyke Show regular Morey Amsterdam.

Coming around the homestretch are two horse movies starring Hollywood stud Robert Redford. In The Electric Horseman, he's a washed-up rodeo star "just walkin'" around to save funeral expenses." He's a bit on the decrepit side, but Redford did all of his own riding stunts in the film. Redford is back in the saddle in The Horse Whisperer, playing a horse trainer with a special touch. Memorable quote? "Truth is, I help horses with people problems."

The Dame gets a gun

Mirren avoids being typecast by taking on role in Red Makes move from Queen to retired spy

NED EHRBAR

▶ Helen Mirren in Red

As the posters and commercials for Red prove, there's something about seeing Dame Helen Mirren holding an assault rifle. It's unexpected, to say the least, and that's one of the main reasons the famed British actress signed up for the project, based on Warren Ellis' graphic novel about over-the-hill spies going back to work. (The title stands for "retired, extremely dangerous.")

"The whole idea is to do something different from what you've just done," Mirren explains. "The Queen was an incredible experience for me in terms of the attention the film got, but that sort of attention kind of sticks. And I was getting a bit sick of people saying, 'Oh, you're so regal and you play all these queens.' And I thought, actually I don't play queens. I play lots of different things. For a long time before that, I was a police detective."

So to subvert such royal expectations, she grabbed a gun. Despite her proficiency with weapons on screen, Mirren insists she's not a fan of firearms. "I don't like to ever say a gun is fun," she says. "The guns I found the most horrifying are these small machine guns. They're not funny, they're terrible because you can cause such havoc. Dreadful, dreadful."

Given that Red focuses on agents that have been put out to pasture, the topic of retirement is obviously on Mirren's mind — not that she has any specific plans to pack it in. "As night follows day, inevitably it will happen, but I have no idea," she admits. "I think we all have a dream of what it would be like not to work and grow heirloom tomatoes. And I do have that dream. It would be lovely. I do love gardening and all of that. But I do love my work."

Of course, it's not the actual acting — or the awards and attention — that Mirren would miss if she called it a day. Instead, she explains, it's the interactions with everyone from directors to co-stars to journalists. "In my job and in all the jobs related to my job, you get to meet and work with and be involved with clever, imaginative people who constantly surprise you."

Inspiration

- To play a genial retired spy in Red, Mirren was inspired to base her character on Martha Stewart.
- Stewart combines sweetness with efficiency and a laser-like ability to concentrate, she said.

Zach flirts with insanity

Comedian researched mental illness for role in It's Kind of a Funny Story
Brings humour to dramatic role

PHIL BROWN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

▶ Zach Galifianakis, right, and Keir Gilchrist star in It's Kind of a Funny Story.

Zach Galifianakis might be best known for his role in The Hangover, but he's been a fascinatingly original comedic voice in stand up for years. His act typically involves playing gentle music on a piano while delivering absurd non-sequiturs like, "My New Year's resolution was to stop saying 'you go girl' to myself," and occasionally berating the crowd like a crazy person. He has long played with the idea that he's insane, so it should come as no surprise that his latest role is a hilarious and surprisingly dramatic turn as a psyche ward patient in It's Kind of a Funny Story.

"I've always been fascinated by that," Galifianakis told Metro. "I think that a lot of people put on the front that everything is going ok, but I feel that the human mind can go completely crazy at any minute."

The delicate balance Galifianakis walks between eccentricity and comedic insanity has always been central to his work. This impressive new performance comes as a result of being able to explore mental illness more thoroughly than ever before.

"I actually did research and went to a couple of mental institutions," revealed Galifianakis. "I've never really prepared for anything in my life, but for this it was important to see the real thing."

Fortunately, fans of the comedian needn't be concerned that he's become a dramatic actor. Co-directors Ryan Fleck and Anna Boden (Half Nelson) let Galifianakis improvise and infuse the role with his unique sense of humour, a freedom he considers vital.

"Some writers don't want you to mess with their words and I totally understand that. But they gave more freedom which is important because a) I can't remember a lot of lines and b) quite frankly, not this script, but most of the scripts in the movie business are terrible. People are always saying, 'I've always wanted to write a movie.' Trust me, just write it because you'd be amazed by what gets through the pipeline."

"I didn't know how to navigate having two directors at first. I think Ryan is more hands on and Anna kind of whispers in his ear like, 'hey tell fatboy with the beard that he's missing his light.' They're really nice people, very sweet and shy. I like that."

Secretariat a champ

Secretariat
Genre: Drama
Director: Randall Wallace
Stars: Diane Lane, John Malkovich
●●●½

Secretariat succeeds in one area where most true sports stories stumble: Despite the outcome of the famed horse's run at the triple crown in 1973, director Randall Wallace still manages to infuse his races with tension, suspense and uncertainty.

But as much personality as the horse has — and as thrilling as the race sequences are — the film really belongs to Diane Lane, as Secretariat's owner, Penny Chenery, who defies social and gender conventions to handle raising the horse after her father's death.

Despite being beautifully shot and generally satisfying, with strong performances from Lane and John Malkovich (as ornery Quebecois trainer Lucien Laurin), there are some missteps.

The writing errs on the side of obvious a little too often, with many of Lane's big moments scripted like, well, big moments — like ready-made awards season clips.

And they spend so much time going over the particulars of breeding, training and racing horses that audience members may feel qualified to raise a champion themselves after seeing it.

But despite that and some overt Christianity — Oh Happy Day features prominently — the film is still a champ.

Life As We Know It
Genre: Romantic Comedy
Director: Greg Berlanti
Stars: Katherine Heigl, Josh Duhamel
●●●

Life As We Know It may not quite be the Movie You Think It Is.

Marketed as a straight-up rom-com, the slight charmer actually plays best as a humanist drama between two opposing personalities making the most of a bad situation.

When their mutual best friends die accidentally, uptight Holly (Katherine Heigl) and easygoing Messer (Josh Duhamel) are made legal guardians of the deceased parents' infant.

A premise that hardly warrants the big-screen, the leads pull out all the stops and conjure a chemistry that raises the melodrama above the waterline.

Even amongst the obvious gags about smelly diapers, there lie a few hearty laughs and an impassioned attempt at sincerity. ● STEVE GOW

Catfish is a movie of the moment. This disturbing and thought-provoking documentary chronicles Nev Schulman's digital relationship with a family of artists via Facebook.

After developing a romance with one family member, he tries to meet them and quickly discovers how easy it is to be deceived online.

The film was made by a group of constantly filming friends who never would have documented the story without the accessibility of digital cameras and the dominance of Internet culture.

It's a powerful cautionary tale and impressive example of DIY filmmaking with an emotional sucker punch. Catfish might not develop much of a shelf life, but right now it's vital viewing. ● PHIL BROWN

Electronic upstarts reshape punk music

- Abandon All Ships fuses punk and electronica to create bold new sound
- Band coined the slang word 'geeve' and tattooed it to their bodies

▶ Abandon All Ships gained popularity after going on MuchMusic's DisBand program.

"We just don't geeve," shrugs Abandon All Ships (AAS) vocalist Angelo Aita.

Slang terminology has long been a way for youth to create autonomy. Lingo separates young from old; allows informal chat while excluding others and fosters fresh opinions of what is acceptable.

"Geeve" though? Thanks to Toronto's hardcore punk-influenced electronic upstarts Abandon All Ships, a new word is about to enter common vernacular. Only those who understand it are on their side of the generation gap.

"Geeve's got multiple meanings but the most important one is that we just don't (care)," laughs Aita. "We (used) this word a lot growing up. It's like, whatever happens, happens. We're still gonna do things our way."

That they are. The word has become so pivotal to Aita, bassist Martin Broda, guitarists Kyler Stephen Browne and Andrew Paiano, drummer Daniel Paiano and keyboardist Sebastian Cassisi-Nunez, it's the official title of their debut full-length.

At that, Geeving (Underground Operations/Universal Music Canada) is bold. Delving into unexplored territory, it finds punk and electronica — two vastly different musical genres — uniting as though they've always been together.

Channelling their inherently danceable Euro-pop grooves through a severe filter of punk's combative aggression, Geeving is as unique as it is provocative.

"We're interested in everything from modern hardcore and metal like Parkway Drive meshed together with a throwback-'90s Euro style including Joée, DJ Company," Aita notes, explaining how the band created such an anomalous style.

"We grew up through the '90s and Euro was shoved in your face all the time so it helped shape what we do. Nobody's mixed these two elements together before but we genuinely love both of them."

Apparently they're not alone in their adoration of disparity. AAS has garnered impressive popularity during their stint on the second season of MuchMusic program DisBAND, acclaim sure to push Geeving to the top of many charts.

Not that AAS could "geeve" a rat's bum cheeks. Aita declares that regardless of acceptance, they're gonna geeve it their all.

"We have 'Geeving' tattooed on our bodies, it has that much meaning to us. The sincerity, creativity and passion of our music is undeniable."

SINGER TURNED ACTOR

JT loves his vinyl records

Justin Timberlake says he thinks vinyl records sound better than digitalized tunes.

The 29-year-old pop musician and actor told German newspaper Frankfurter Rundschau yesterday that he loves putting on records featuring oldies from the Beach Boys and early Beatles, claiming they "sound warmer" and "more vintage" than digital versions.

Still, the singer acknowledges that MP3 files are handy for selling his own songs online.

Timberlake currently stars as Napster founder Sean Parker in The Social Network, a biopic about Facebook creator Mark Zuckerburg.

Discover How Implant-Supported Dentures May Improve Your Life!

If you're struggling with ill-fitting dentures, reduced taste, restricted diets, impaired speech and reduced confidence in social situations, here's some good news. New implant-supported dentures can provide you with secure, stable, beautiful teeth, quickly, easily and comfortably.

Without teeth, the bone in your jaw gets smaller over time. With the loss of this solid foundation, loose dentures tend to rub the gums creating sore spots. Utilizing dental implants which are small cylinders that function as artificial tooth roots, we may be able to give you a new foundation to support an implant-supported denture that functions and feels much the same as natural teeth.

Implant supported dentures offer a number of important advantages, among them:

Better ability to chew food... traditional dentures show, on average a 30% to 50% decrease in chewing performance compared with natural teeth, whereas implant supported dentures can function similarly to natural teeth.

Better stability... conventional dentures often require adhesives and usually slip, whereas implant supported dentures are designed to stay in place.

Improved food taste... conventional dentures often cover soft tissue, affecting the taste of food. Additionally, denture adhesives may adversely affect food taste.

These problems can be mostly eliminated with implant supported dentures.

Increased comfort... food can get stuck under conventional dentures causing discomfort and compromising your oral hygiene. Implant supported dentures will not slip, fall out, rub or create sore spots, and you'll be able to fully taste and enjoy your meals again.

More youthful appearance... implant supported dentures offer vast improvements over conventional dentures, minimizing the bone loss that results in premature facial aging.

Improved phonetics... conventional dentures depend on the tongue and adhesives to help keep the dentures in place, and facial expression muscles may tighten to prevent the dentures from sliding forward. Implant supported dentures on the other hand are stable and do not require these manipulations for retention; therefore "clicking" of the dentures or "whistling" of air around false teeth can be eliminated in most cases.

The bottom line? Implant supported dentures can help you to smile, laugh, eat and speak with renewed confidence. We believe everyone deserves a healthy, beautiful smile, and now there's no reason to settle for anything less. We can advise you if implant supported dentures may be right for you by performing a thorough oral exam.

Yours for better dental health,

Bad boy image

Pop star Bruno Mars due in court on charges of cocaine posession
Could face up to four years in prison Mars' tour kicks off in November

SUBMITTED

Bruno Mars had a wholesome image up until his arrest.

Bruno Mars should be having the best week ever: He has the No. 1 song in America, his debut album, Doo-Wops & Hooligans, was released this week and his 25th birthday is on Friday.

But while singer-songwriter-producer has much to smile about, at the same time, his success is being tainted by a recent felony charge.

Mars was arrested last month for allegedly possessing 2.6 grams of cocaine after performing at a Las Vegas nightclub. He's due in court Nov. 18 and if convicted, he faces up to four years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

But some industry experts believe the drug charge won't do much harm to the singer's rising career.

"I don't think he meant it to come off that way, but his recent arrest shows that he has a little bit of edge I suppose," said Craig Marks, the editor of Billboard.

Marks said the arrest might have the unintended effect of introducing Mars to a wider celebrity audience than he would have enjoyed before.

"It's not the best kind of publicity and hopefully it doesn't really indicate some kind of deeper problem," Marks said, "but the fact is that I don't think it will harm his following."

The drug charge for the talented musician comes as a surprise. Though a newcomer, the image Mars built was an easygoing, wholesome one.

He's the man with the cooing falsetto and guitar grooves, behind the scene and in front of it. He sang on, co-wrote and co-produced two of the year's biggest songs: Travie McCoy's jam Billionaire and B.o.B's No. 1 rap groove Nothin' on You. And Mars' own single, the pop tune Just the Way You Are, has made it to the top spot of Billboard's Hot 100 chart.

"He's got a good mix of R&B and pop styles, which is very 'right' right now," Marks said.

Mars is one-third of the production trio the Smeezingtons, which includes Philip Lawrence and Ari Levine. Mars said they put together Nothin' on You and Billionaire in a single day.

The Smeezingtons have also produced international hits like Flo Rida's Right Round, K'Naan's Wavin' Flag and Cee Lo's (Expletive) You! And they've penned tunes for Justin Bieber, Brandy, Matisyahu, Mike Posner and Sean Kingston, among others.

They met in Los Angeles where Mars moved in 2002 after graduating from high school in Hawaii.

Mars' mother, from the Philippines, and his father, of Puerto Rican descent, met in Hawaii. Mars said he was singing professionally since the age of six, and credits the island with helping him discover his musical talents.They met in Los Angeles where Mars moved in 2002 after graduating from high school in in Hawaii.

"I was real lucky because I come from a real musical family and Hawaii's already so musical, like everybody already plays instruments, everybody's already singing," he said.

"You have your Top 40 radio so you can get your hip-hop and your R&B, but then you get this other stuff, this cool folk music, these really beautiful songs on ukulele and acoustic, and (I) just grew up with a lot of (that)."

When Mars started writing for Doo-Wops & Hooligans, he focused on creating songs that would translate during live performances, drawing inspiration from Michael Jackson, Elvis Presley and Prince.

"I like watching rock stars, people that come up on stage and do their thing. Even Tupac. That's what I idolized," said Mars, who is currently on the road with Maroon 5 and OneRepublic (his own tour kicks off in November).

SILENT SONGS PACK A PUNCH

CROSS

'Tis the time of year when British music fans start looking ahead to the last great event of the year: The Christmas No. 1.

This has been something of a national obsession — successfully ported from what's nothing more than a sales and marketing tool for the music industry — since the NME first started publishing an official singles chart in 1952. People are encouraged to push their favourite to the top of the charts in the buying frenzy before Christmas by buying singles.

Usually, the winner is some mass appeal pop song. Then along came Simon Cowell. Beginning in 2005, there was an unbroken string of Christmas No. 1's from winners of his Idol-like show, The X Factor.

▶ Joe McElderry

Around this time last year, a couple from Essex said, "Enough is enough." Using nothing more than a Facebook account and the power for social networking, they launched a campaign from their home to push Rage Against the Machine's expletive-laden Killing in the Name to number one to fend off X Factor winner, Joe McElderry.

Their campaign went global, receiving support from everyone from even Paul McCartney. And when the final figures were toted up, damned if the winner wasn't Rage.

So what about Christmas 2010? There's a new Facebook campaign dubbed Cage Against the Machine. The goal is to push a John Cage's 1952 composition entitled 4'33 (read as Four minutes and thirty-three seconds) to the top. This is even a weirder choice than Killing in the Name because Cage's composition is nothing more than four minutes and thirty-three seconds of dead silence.

Cage conceived the piece to get an audience to consider that all sound could, in its own way, be music. The work is performed by a single pianist who sits down in front of piano and does nothing for precisely 4:33.

The performance consists of all the other sounds that can be heard as the pianist just sits there.

A number of people have covered the track (Frank Zappa, Sonic Youth and New Waver's techno remix).

You can even buy it on iTunes for 99 cents. There was even a major plagiarism suit brought by Cage's estate against a UK singer named Mike Batt when he released a song of silence.

I think this is brilliant. Anything that makes Simon Cowell's head explode is fine by me.

Family revives Peanuts

As Charlie Brown and Snoopy turn 60, the family of creator Schulz plans for the gang's future

▶ Happiness is a Warm Blanket, Charlie Brown is the first new animated film in five years, set for release next spring.

Good grief, Charlie Brown. The world has certainly changed since the Peanuts were born.

In 60 years, the U.S. sent a man to the moon, survived the Cold War and now has one of the worst economic funks in decades. All that time, Charles Schulz's imaginary gang has been a fixture of newspaper funny pages and grainy holiday TV specials.

Now, his family is working to keep Snoopy, Lucy and the rest alive for generations to come.

A handful of new projects is in the works. The first new animated film in five years is set for release next spring called, Happiness is a Warm Blanket, Charlie Brown.

ABC just signed on for five more years of airing Charlie Brown holiday specials. A new social media game began on Facebook and Twitter last month to Countdown to the Great Pumpkin, and the comic strip has made its way to a popular gaming website for millions of children.

The enduring appeal is no surprise, said Lee Mendelson, who produced the Peanuts films with Schulz for more than 40 years.

Schulz had said "there's always going to be a market for innocence in this country," Mendelson said Friday as a photograph of Schulz at his drawing board was hung at the Smithsonian's National Portrait Gallery in recognition of his impact on the nation. Schulz died in 2000.

"The innocence and the humour that he brought, I think, helped us as a nation through many bad times," Mendelson said.

Peanuts comics, which first appeared in 1950 in the St. Paul Pioneer Press, still appear in 2,200 newspapers in 75 different countries. Newspaper publisher E.W. Scripps Co. sold the licensing unit that controls Peanuts and other comics in April to Iconix Brand Group Inc. — a licensing company partially owned by the Schulz family — for $175 million.

Jeannie Schulz, the cartoonist's widow, said she often hears from people at the Charles M. Schulz Museum in Santa Rosa, Calif., about how well the characters reflect their own feelings–. That may be a key to the Peanuts' longevity, she said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New projects

- The Peanuts Collection, a new book out later this month, will trace the comic strip's history.
- Great Pumpkin Island is being released on Poptropica, a gaming website that caters to millions of tweens.

A series survivor — and this year he gets a girl

Jesse Williams talks about staying on in Grey's Anatomy

JESSICA CARLESON
@METRONEWS.CA

Grey's Anatomy has reached its seventh season. Season Six ended with a shoot-out at Seattle Grace Mercy West Hospital, but the one who survived was Dr. Jackson Avery. Jesse Williams is happy to stay on and continue to be a regular in the immensely popular hospital series.

"It was tough that some characters were killed at the end of Season Six, I had become friends with everybody. I'm glad my character survived though," he tells Metro.

The new season starts with a counselling session for the survivors.

"I think the tragedy will bring people closer together," he says.

Dr. Jackson Avery, the character Jesse Williams portrays in Grey's Anatomy, has now been made a regular on the cast.

"It was very exciting. I'm very happy and honoured. I spent a year discovering my character and didn't know if I'd stay in the show for a long time or just one episode."

Metro asked Williams if he himself has any similarities with the TV character he plays.

"Some," he replied. "We are both very competitive and passionate about winning. Jackson is more stubborn but also a bit nicer than I am. There are some similarities, but enough differences that makes it fun to work on his character."

> "We are both very competitive and passionate about winning"
> JESSE WILLIAMS

The secrecy surrounding the plot remains strong, even for the actors, but Jesse Williams is sure of one thing – Dr Jackson Avery will get a girl.

"I don't know who or when but I'm sure it will happen soon. I don't know if it will be a girl from the show or a new character but I hope to find out soon."

Williams also offered some thoughts on his latest big screen venture, The Cabin in the Woods, a tongue-in-cheek thriller also starring Hollywood veteran Richard Jenkins.

"It was really a great experience [starring in The Cabin in the Woods]. [Director] Joss Whedon is great. It's a horror movie so there was a lot of blood and monsters. It was very intense; I've never done anything like it before.

"I hope it will be released in the beginning of next year as planned."

Michelle Obama holds down the top spot among the power elites

Hillary Clinton may be Secretary of State, but that doesn't mean she's more powerful than Oprah Winfrey — at least according to Forbes' annual Most Powerful Women in the World List.

Clinton ranks No. 5, while Winfrey comes in at No. 3. Michelle Obama holds the top spot, while Lady Gaga, Beyonce Knowles and Ellen DeGeneres make it into the top 10.

"The women on our list, through their respective realms of power and influence, are shaping many of the agenda setting conversations of our day," says Moira Forbes, vice-president and publisher of ForbesWoman.

A new take on the ol' sticky pecan pie

This pie was inspired by the classic sticky pecan pie This version is bright with the colour and flavour of dried cranberries as well

The difference between flaky and mealy pie crusts is mostly in the technique. Try this delicious recipe with the following flaky crust:

Flaky pie crust
Preparation:

1. In a large bowl, toss together flour and salt. Add butter chunks and shortening, then use your fingers to smear them into flour. The goal is not to mix the fat into the flour, but to break down the large chunks.
2. When chunks of butter and shortening all have been pressed into flour, drizzle ice water into mixture, tossing it together. It will not resemble a cohesive dough.
3. Pour mixture onto counter, then form it into a pile in front of you. Using the heel of your hand, smear mixture against counter. Work from the side of the mixture farthest from you and press away from your body, smearing a bit more of the mixture with each press.
4. Once all of the mixture has been smeared with the heel of your hand, gather it together again and repeat the process. At this point, your mixture should look like a shaggy dough. Gather pieces and gently squeeze together into 2 discs, each about 2.5 cm (1 inch) thick. Wrap each in plastic and refrigerate for 30 minutes.
5. When ready to make pie, on a lightly floured surface, roll one of the discs into a 33-cm (13-inch) circle. Always roll from the centre of the disc and turn frequently to prevent sticking.
6. Fold dough in half, then again to form quarters. Lift triangle of dough into pie pan, putting folded point in centre of pan. Gently unfold dough to cover whole pan. You should have a generous overhang once dough is all settled into corners of pan.
7. If using a top crust, fill bottom crust with pie filling as directed, then repeat rolling, folding and moving technique with the other disc of dough.
8. Trim overhang of dough to 1 cm (1/2 inch) beyond edge of pan. Fold edge of dough under itself, pinching to seal. Using either a fork or your fingers, crimp edge of dough around pie and against top of pie pan.
9. If using a single-crust recipe, fill pie after crimping edges of crust. Bake as directed for your pie recipe. Makes 2 crusts (for 1 double-crust pie or 2 single-crust pies).

Key to crusts

- Flaky, mealy and cookie crusts must be rolled, then fitted into a pie or tart pan. Crumb crusts are dumped into the pan, then pressed into place.
- Flaky, mealy and cookie crusts need to be edged.
- Whatever variety crust you use, it's a good idea to set the pie on a baking sheet when you place it in the oven.
- Most crusts can be prepared ahead of time and stored until needed.

Ingredients :

Pie
- 250 ml dried cranberries
- 250 ml water
- 250 ml dark brown sugar
- 250 ml maple syrup
- 15 ml molasses
- 50 ml heavy cream
- 50 ml butter
- 6 egg yolks
- 125 ml slivered almonds, toasted
- 125 ml pistachios
- 1 uncooked flaky pie crust, bottom only

Crust
- 625 ml all-purpose flour
- 5 ml salt
- 250 ml butter, cold, cut in 1-cm chunks
- 50 ml shortening
- 75 ml ice water

Cranberry Almond Pistachio Pie
Preparation:

1. Heat oven to 180 C (350 F). Place a baking sheet in the oven.
2. In a small microwave-safe bowl, combine cranberries and water. Microwave on high for 1 minute or until very hot. Set aside to cool. Once cooled, drain and discard water.
3. In a medium pan over medium-high, heat brown sugar, maple syrup, molasses, cream and butter until boiling. Remove from heat.
4. In a medium, heat-safe bowl, whisk egg yolks until smooth. While whisking continuously, slowly pour hot sugar mixture into egg yolks, allowing yolks to heat up gradually until entire mixture is incorporated.
5. Fit a single pie crust into a pie pan, trimming and crimping edge.
6. Sprinkle almonds, pistachios and drained cranberries evenly into pie crust. Pour filling mixture over nuts and cranberries, making sure they are evenly coated. Place pie on baking sheet. Bake for 45 minutes or until filling is slightly puffed and crust is golden. Makes 8 servings.

Yankees head home up 2-0 over Minnesota

Andy Pettitte and the New York Yankees stumbled through September and landed in the AL wild-card spot.

As the Minnesota Twins can attest, the Yankees are hardly an underdog in October.

Pushing the home-field advantage back in Minnesota's face, Pettitte turned in a vintage post-season performance with seven smooth innings and Lance Berkman had two big hits for New York in a 5-2 victory over the Twins on Thursday evening for a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five division series.

Berkman hit a go-ahead home run in the fifth and a tiebreaking double in the seventh against Carl Pavano, sending the Twins to their 11th straight post-season loss. Eight of those have come against the Yankees, who trailed in each of those games.

The Twins haven't won a post-season game since 2004, matching the Philadelphia Phillies (1915-1976) for the second-longest streak in history behind the Boston Red Sox (1986-1995) and their 13 in a row.

Rangers have Rays on ropes

Two dominating pitching performances and a long home run by playoff neophyte Michael Young have the Texas Rangers on the verge of winning a post-season series for the first time.

Young hit a three-run homer one pitch after keeping a fifth-inning at-bat alive with a disputed check-swing, helping C.J. Wilson and the AL West champions beat the Tampa Bay Rays 6-0 on Thursday for a 2-0 lead in their AL division series.

Spezza may miss opener

- Star centre's bid to redeem himself with fans may be delayed by injury
- Coach says whether he'll play in opener will be game-time decision

PHILLIP MACCALLUM/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Jason Spezza may miss the season opener.

Jason Spezza may have to wait a few days to see how fans react when he takes the ice at Scotiabank Place for the first time this season.

The Senators star centre, who spoke up in the spring about his unhappiness at being booed by Sens fans during Ottawa's first-round playoff loss to Pittsburgh, could miss the season opener against Buffalo on Friday night because of a groin injury.

Spezza left practice early Wednesday and didn't skate with the team Thursday. He didn't meet with the media, but coach Cory Clouston said Spezza will be a game-time decision.

"He was very disappointed that he wasn't able to practise today," Clouston said.

Ottawa plays three games in four days to start the campaign, and the Senators would prefer to take precaution rather than risk aggravating the injury further.

"We don't think it's going to be long term, if it's any games at all," Clouston said. "That's why we're not going to push Jason, and then all of a sudden he's out four or five games.

"We'll just have to make sure we play well as a team if he doesn't play."

Spezza became the target of boobirds when the Senators lost in six games to the Penguins.

During player exit meetings, he expressed his unhappiness over the reception to general manager Bryan Murray. When those comments became public, it led to Spezza having to come out over the summer and dispel rumours that he wanted out of Ottawa, so one of the storylines going into the home opener was how the crowd would react to him.

If Spezza doesn't play, it forces the Senators into reshuffling their first two lines.

Spezza would have centred Daniel Alfredsson and Milan Michalek on the top line with Mike Fisher between Alex Kovalev and Nick Foligno.

Instead, Fisher will line up between Foligno and Alfredsson while Peter Regin moves up from the fourth line between Michalek and Kovalev.

J-S Giguere made sure the Toronto Maple Leafs season got off to a winning start.

The veteran goaltender made 25 saves Thursday as the Leafs edged the short-staffed Montreal Canadiens 3-2 in the regular-season opener for both teams.

Goaltending was one of the key reasons Leafs coach Ron Wilson felt good heading into the year, and Giguere justified that optimism. He kicked away a great Andrei Kostitsyn chance early and wisely poke-checked the puck off Lars Eller's stick in the third period with his team clinging to a one-goal lead.

Handsome, you're so stubborn you make me crazy. But you're the only man for me and I still get a bzzzzz when you look at me. I love you and your silly bum so much, babes.
SLOOPS

To the only man I want, You mean everything to me. You've never held back from showing how much you've loved me all these years. Friday is our "special day", and I can't wait to spend time with you– as always. I love you so much.

This goes out to our one and only Corinne. You keep our world together and without you we would be nowhere in life. You are the Elmer Glue to all of us Fairway Friends. Have a fantabulously stupendous birthday, our little Corr Corr! Let's extend lunch to 60mins!!!

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 You are not the sort to back down when someone opposes you but you will find yourself up against a tough opponent today and the planets suggest it might be wise to let them have their little victory.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 It's make or break time for a relationship and what happens over the next 24 hours will determine whether you stay together or go your separate ways.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Be careful who you trust today because there is a real possibility that someone is out to deceive you. Mercurywarns you would be wise to err on the side of caution.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 It would, of course, be nice if you could get along with everyone you meet but Cancerians are sensitive people and some individuals simply rub you up the wrong way.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 What happens today may seem dramatic, but is really of only minor importance. What does matter, of course, is how you choose to react to this and similar situations.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Mercury, your ruler, close to Saturn, planet of restriction, will limit your options, but that's no bad thing. If you are going to make the most of your talents you must focus on the one goal that truly matters.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You may be entitled to tell people how to behave but that does not mean you have to do so. Be smart today and let those around you work out for themselves what it is they should be doing.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Your attitude towards someone will change dramatically today. You simply do not have the time or the patience. They get it right or they get going.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 According to the planets you have allowed yourself to be fooled into believing that someone you work or do business with has your interests at heart when, in fact, they care only for themselves.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 A difference of opinion is just that. It's isn't a fight, still less a war, and if it seems to be heading in that direction then obviously you need to get a grip on yourself. Lighten up, it's life.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You may find it easy to keep up with the latest fashions, but some people are not so lucky and a friend or family member will need your help today to get to grips with something they don't understand.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 You seem to be caught in the middle of a battle of wills and you're not enjoying the experience one little bit. Tell both sides that you don't intend to support either one of them. SALLY BROMPTON
